Alfred the great, king of England, one day hid from his enemies in the hut of a poor peasant. The peasant’s wife did not know him, for he was dressed in rough clothes. She thought him an idle fellow and set him to mind some cakes for her while she went to gather wood, Alfred sat before the fire thinking of his plans for the next battle; he quite forgot the cakes, which lay smoking on the hearth before him.

When the peasant’s wife returned, she was so angry to find her cakes burnt that she boxed the king’s ears. Just then her husband came into the hut. “Stay, wife, stay!” he cried. “He is thy lord the king ! The poor woman was frightened at what she had done. She fell on her knees and begged for mercy. But the king smile and forgave her. “Rise, and fear not,” he said. “The fault was mine”.
