Interdisciplinary National E-Conference on Social, Economic and Political Intervention for Environmental Sustainability
Organized by
DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY
BHAKTA KAVI NARSINH MEHTA UNIVERSITY, JUNAGADH

Theme of the Conference:

Without perceptible, strong, and decisive action, talk(s) of environment conservation and sustainability would remain just that: empty rhetoric. While we devote time to calling for the sustainability of our environment, in reality, it is also necessary to deliberate on the decisive steps taken for it and their effects and consequences at both national and academic level.

Despite the Copenhagen Summit, the Kyoto Protocol and the Paris Agreement, global temperatures are rising. The government report on the impact of climate change on the country stated that temperature over India is likely to rise by over 4 degree Celsius by the end of 21st century. In this regard, this is high time to work on environment sustainability. It is a fact that air pollution level of major cities is increasing rapidly, river pollution is increasing and being politicized, human population is exploding and forests are being destroyed. While the government has to run a sanitation campaign, materialistic life has directly and indirectly harmed the environment and a grave threat has emerged regarding environmental sustainability.

Currently, environmental problems that lead to disasters and tragedies will also be one of the reasons for causalities in future and require urgent attention from authorities. The way natural laws are being violated on earth, the way environmental elements are being harmed, the way natural resources are being exploited, the way human beings have forgotten to preserve the environment in the race of materialism, many problems have arisen globally in which the question of climate change is at the forefront.

Global temperatures are rising, glaciers are melting, large amount of people are facing the problem of water scarcity and most importantly, developing countries are suffering badly from this. In this regard, 'environmental sustainability' is too relevant to discuss at national platforms.

What is the role of government and non-government organizations and what should their role be, what is the role of the public to preserve environment, what is the role of various institutions of society and what should be done to save environment are some of the issues that need to be discussed in the 21st century. To provide a platform and avenue for just such discussions and deliberations, Department of Sociology, Bhakta Kavi Narsinh Mehta University, is going to organize a National E-Conference on 'Social, Economic and Political Intervention for Environmental Sustainability'.
